Field trips are considered to be important in learning as it not only deepens and enhances understanding but it also provides an opportunity for the children to learn through shared social experience in an authentic setting. From Monkey's screeches to the Lion's Roar, Animal behaviour in real life is very intriguing and thrilling. Our Kangaroo Kids went on an expedition to Vandalur Zoo this Thursday and were amused to see the chimpanzee hanging on the tree and were excited to see a variety of exquisite birds and animals. LIFELONG LEARNERS

Learning and acquisition of knowledge have become very important in today's life, but there are some children for whom academics are not as easy as it is for the others. These children have a different style of learning pattern than what is defined by our education system. In this process of understanding different learning patterns and difficulties, BHIS-K has taken another step forward by training our teachers on this very aspect. A training programme for all the teachers was conducted by our School Counselor/Special Educator on the 20th & 23th of September. The programme dealt with the different types of learning difficulties and the nuances of learning patterns. This training programme helped highlight how learning differently does not make a child different, it only means the child requires a little more understanding and support to overcome these small difficulties.
